About this collection

Mysterious Marble Dude (as it is currently titled) is a world where real-life superheroes are a thing... or are they? The story follows Allana, who is more commonly known as the "Mysterious Marble Dude", a hero who has stopped many a wrongdoing in the city.

Right now, there is very little to this world. Will it be fleshed out later on? Perhaps; it did get a new story during FFM 2020, five years after the first story was written, after all. It is, however, one of the low-priority story worlds right now.

Last pieces were there. Allana had to get them before the time ran out. Otherwise things would be go awry.

Click. Click. Click. Just two more...

Click. Time is running out.

Everything depended on this to go right on the first try.

Click. Allana held her breath. Time ran out.

Nothing happened.

The city was safe once again. Allana left her trademark, a blue glass marble, there.

The policemen came so fast that she barely made it out of their sights.

"Hey, it's that mysterious marble dude again! He saved us all once again!" one said.

"Man, that dude sure knows his stuff! I wonder who he is!" someone else said.

"Yeah!" agreed the first one.

Allana smiled. If those guys just knew at first that she was just a teenaged girl who did not even look like a nerd, let alone athletic.

The "mysterious marble dude", like the policemen had called her, disappeared to the darkness of midnight.

Allana's Secret

Collected in Hunting Inklings

If Allana ever told anyone that the whole thing with mysterious marble dude began with one of the marbles she carried with herself dropping when she was tying a knocked out burglar, she would have been laughed at.

Well, if she had ever told anyone that she had been doing counter-criminal things from the age of fourteen, she would have been laughed at as well.

That was the best part, though. No one would, let alone could, ever suspect her of being the mysterious marble dude even if they somehow realized that the dude was actually a dudette.

Therefore, she felt serene when she left outside to "browse the mall" but donned her mask when she was far enough and dashed to reach this week's target: a group of teens who have made mistake of making mugging old people their hobby.
